INTRODUCTION

At the new stage of development of Uzbekistan, forming a new system of educating young people in the spirit of patriotism has become one of the urgent tasks. The mass media, information flows in the Internet system and the uncertainty of the causes of the ongoing processes require mental stability, moral maturity and physical strength from the younger generation.

The concepts of globalism, "man of the world" in a certain sense embody ideas aimed at removing entire generations from their history, moral and spiritual duties, not caring about the future - in general, destroying the status of a person as a person. Patriotism is the greatest duty of a person as a citizen and a member of a certain society, and includes such qualities as loyalty to the family, trust in the future, respect for history, attention to the present day, taking into account the interests of people around, and the ability to distinguish right from wrong. If the desired army and society do not develop a sense of patriotism, even if the most modern weapons are given at their disposal, it will not be useful. That is why, in the defense of the Motherland, first of all, the human factor is in the leading position.

Today, as part of the implementation of the adopted concepts for increasing the efficiency of spiritual and educational work in the higher education system in educating student youth in the spirit of military patriotism, large-scale work is being carried out to educate youth who are comprehensively developed, educated, devoted to their people, and also to the cause of serving the Motherland.

MATERIALS AND METHODS

A sense of patriotism should be shown in any work. For example, the symbols of our state, our national values and traditions, historical monuments and landmarks are among them. So, patriotism is love for one's Motherland; to respect its history, culture, national and universal values; confidence of each person in his own strength and unity of the whole society; to feel connected to the history of his country and responsible for its future; in a word, it is to show bravery for one's motherland. Such enthusiasm is inculcated in young people during the education process.

Therefore, formation of patriotism among young people is the demand of the times. If we cannot educate young people in the spirit of patriotism, it is impossible to form a sense of military patriotism in them.

From this point of view, today, all opportunities are being created to create modern, advanced and innovative conditions for young people to get an education, acquire a profession, and grow into mature people. Because the more attention is paid to supporting the young generation in every way, raising them to be spiritually mature, physically healthy, patriotic and selfless, protecting their rights and interests, the more effective it will be.

At the same time, threats to national values, the culture and identity of peoples, and attempts to assimilate foreign ideas are intensifying in the context of the rapidly developing globalization processes, as young people remain the most vulnerable group, so it remains in this direction. Adoption of additional comprehensive measures remains one of the urgent tasks.

The aim of military-patriotic education of young people is to shape such important qualities as activism in various sections of society, especially in types of public service related to the military sphere, devotion to the Constitution and to military duty in peacetime and wartime, high responsibility and accountability for the fate of one's country and people. One spiritual value that is becoming increasingly important as society develops is the sense of patriotism. Patriotism is a quality inherent in people who deeply respect the history and destiny of their native land and their people, and who are capable of setting examples of self-sacrifice in the interests of the homeland. The feeling of respect, love and trust for the homeland and the nation is formed on the basis of certain common interests, goals deeply rooted in the hearts of people, influencing their activities and mobilising them to carry out responsible tasks.

That is why every country tries to form patriotism in its citizens and thereby creates the foundations of social stability. Our tactical and strategic goals are to think more deeply about the objective conditions for the formation of true patriotism based on high humanity in young people in the current era full of problems.

RESULT AND DISCUSSION

In order to understand the essence of the concept of military patriotism, first of all, we need to clarify what patriotism is, what kind of concept or virtue it is.

Patriotism is an ancient concept, the basis of which is taken from the Greek language ("pater"), that is, it is taken from the word homeland. Patriotism is a moral and political principle, a social emotion, which includes love for the Motherland, pride for its past and present. The sense of patriotism is instilled in young people primarily from the family, from preschool age. Later, this process is formed in general secondary educational institutions and developed in higher educational institutions. The internalization of values that reflect the Motherland as a natural and spiritual environment, that is, the emotional components of patriotism, are organized in general secondary educational institutions.

Patriotism is a concept that expresses the love and loyalty of the people to their homeland and their country. Patriotism is one of the universal human feelings and spiritual values common to all people, peoples and nations, which has been preserved for centuries. Historically, patriotism is a set of feelings developed in the process of social development of people associated with the fate of their homeland, the struggle of peoples for the inviolability and independence of the territory in which they live. This is manifested in pride in the past and present of the Motherland, in protecting its interests. It is not without reason that it is said that it is a matter of faith to love one's country.

Education of military patriotism in students is a matter of independence, free and prosperous life. Therefore, educating our youth in the spirit of military patriotism, instilling the components of military patriotism into their minds is one of the important issues facing the education system.

The education of truly patriotic citizens of Uzbekistan by introducing into the hearts and minds of young people from early childhood the most important concepts, life and professional skills related to the preservation of the country, the glorification of its glory in the world, is the main content of our state. The education of young people in the spirit of military patriotism is aimed at instilling in young people a sense of loyalty to the Motherland, regardless of nationality, language and profession, and educating them as individuals capable of fulfilling their civic duty and constitutional duties, defending the interests of society and the state, state bodies, public associations and concerted action.

After all, "of particular importance is the strengthening of the education of military patriotism among young people, the promotion of our values and traditions in this area, the wide coverage of the image of our soldiers and officers as heroes of our time through works of art, performances and films." .

CONCLUSION

In short, to educate students in the spirit of military patriotism is to form in them a sense of loyalty to the Motherland, regardless of nationality, language and profession, to make them capable of fulfilling their civic duties and constitutional obligations, protecting the interests of society and the state is a multi-level, systematic, targeted and coordinated activity of state bodies, public associations and other organizations aimed at educating individuals.

To inculcate in students a sense of responsibility towards the State and society, which requires the introduction into the educational process of effective forms and methods of spiritual and moral education of young people, the use of advanced teaching technologies and an effective methodological and material-technical base.
